COLUMBUS 8, OHIO

INTRODUCTION

Dear Friends,

You have started in a new grade, one which requires more written work and detailed directions. Notes will require that you hurry your writing a little. Please remember that if a thing is worth writing on paper, it is worth the time to write it legibly. This new book will help you to firmly fix the habits you have acquired up to this time. Its contents are interesting and will be enjoyable to write.

Good luck,

Frank N. Freeman, Ph.D.

How To Progress With Your Handwriting

1. Use a definite period each day for handwriting study and practice. Start by discussing the page you are using until everyone in the class is familiar with it. If there is any unit that you can not visualize, pick out the specific part and practice it either on paper or on the blackboard until you have established a good mental picture.
2. Practice your writing on loose paper until it is satisfactory, then record your best efforts in this book.
3. Turn in your books at least once each month to your teacher for suggestions, help, notes for improvement, constructive criticism, and a grade on the work you have done thus far.
4. Each page represents work for one week. Practice should be daily, and at the end of the week if your writing is satisfactory it should then be recorded for future comparison.
5. With your teacher's help, establish standards of classroom acceptance for all written work, using a classroom scale as the standard or measuring stick.

For Those of You Who Are Left-Handed

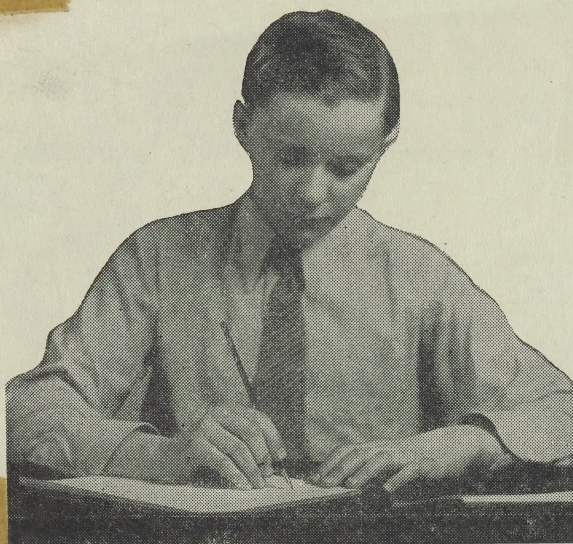

For the sake of your health, convenience, and writing ability, continue to use your left hand, but use it in the correct manner. Do not allow yourself to write with the inverted hand position.

Care of Your Pen

This book is to be filled in with ink. Therefore, the care of your fountain pen or penholder and pen point is important. The most important and most valuable part of your pen is the point, or the business end. It should be drawn slowly from the inkwell to avoid blots, and wiped off carefully when not in use. Care in filling your fountain pen and keeping it in good repair is essential. There are many different kinds of fountain pens that require different kinds of care. You should become familiar with your own pen and the care it requires. Irrespective of the type of pen, you should see that both nibs of the pen are gliding smoothly on the paper.

Position

A complete review of good writing position and of its effects on your writing would be very helpful to you at this time. Check on your position, or ask your teacher to check your position for you. This year you should firmly set the good writing habits you have been learning up to this point.

How to sit, hold your pen, and place the paper to do your best writing.

Book eight of your Correlated series is about America. Its soil, democracy, public relations, inventions, law, materials, and patriotism go to make up an interesting part of this book.

It has been stated that "poor handwriting cost American business in 1939 an estimated total of $80,000,000 through misunderstood or unreadable sales slips, receipts, and other records."

Is the above statement not appalling? This makes us all realize how necessary it is that every girl and boy acquire a quality of handwriting that is easily read. Clear, legible handwriting is both time saving and sight saving. It is a distinct mark of courtesy to the reader to write so that it is clearly understood.

When preparing this text, the author had in mind the various fields of interest boys and girls of your age enjoy. The social studies which include history, geography, and civics seem to hold first interest as they provide rich fields of experience. From these sources, such information is found that will be useful to you as an adult. These sources also provide opportunities to acquire the knowledge, skills, attitudes, and interests which develop good citizenship.

As you study this text, you will find that Your America, with its government, resources, inventions, language, transportation and scientific discoveries, is a wonderful place in which to live. With this fertile field as a background, you will also learn the techniques used in acquiring a legible handwriting. Every page suggests procedures which guide you in your practice. Techniques used in letter formation are indicated; the salient points are also emphasized such as—size, slant, spacing, line quality, and alignment; means for comparison and measuring are also suggested.

Equipped with a basic knowledge of the subject and using it in exploring these fields of interest, you should soon learn to direct your own practice and develop into a clear legible writer.

I went to Michigan with my dad and Mr. Thomas. We caught a few fish and had lots of fun. We saw 30 deers in fields and clearings. I had of fun with my and Mr. Thomas.

From the picture above showing how you work and play, write a descriptive paragraph of your own. This will be used for future comparison, so practice it on practice paper before writing it here.

"America"

"This is America today -
 A country where the children play;
 A land of men and women free
 To speak their thoughts, whatever they be,
 Who need not fear, if voices rise
 The telltale tongues of tyrant spies."

Edgar A. Guest

The above poem, by one of America's favorite writers, is used here through the courtesy of the author and publisher, and appears in the poem, America, published by the Reilly & Lee Co., Book Publishers, Chicago, Illinois. Copyright 1939 Edgar A. Guest.

Practice the poem on other paper until each sentence is improved. If your capital letters are weak and need additional practice, this is the time to do it. Your class may wish to make up a poem of their own as a class project.

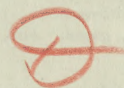

LIVING IN THE U. S. A.

We enjoy living in a democracy.
 The laws made by the people are for our happiness and protection.
 Everyone is given an equal opportunity to make good in our country.

7 ~~W~~ W We w we we were us laws

Many of us living in the U.S.A. do not realize the freedom and advantages our country offers.

In writing capital W, stop at the base line for both strokes. When writing the small w, use an extra pause at the check mark for the retrace just be-fore swinging across to connect with the e in the word we.

You have an equal opportunity with everyone in your room to do your best on this page. List the other opportunities you have to improve your handwriting. If you need to improve the capital e, practice it now. Notice that center loop tips downward.

RESOURCES

Good, rich soil is always in demand. It produces better crops and larger quantities of fruits, grains, and vegetables than poor, worn out soil.

Our soil, timber, coal, oil, iron ore, and gas help make our land rich in natural resources.

Our natural resources influence many manufacturers to locate their plants near the source of the raw material. For example—the saw mill is usually located near the forest. What other processing plants can you name that are located near their source of raw materials?

Learn to practice these words in columns as well as in sentences. The small letter s has a slight retrace at the top and a graceful compound curve on the down stroke. The upward stroke of the s is a trifle more curved than the u, and it extends slightly above the u.

A GOOD NEIGHBOR

We, who live in the United States of America, try to have pleasant relations with our neighbors to the north and south.

Our government cooperates with border construction of bridges, highways, and waterways in both Canada and Mexico.

Americans generally are good neighbors. We try to have friendly business relations with nearby countries. We often visit these countries to study the people and their modes of living. Review the direct oval letters—capitals O, A, and C.

We, who live in the United States of America, try to have pleasant relations with our neighbors to the north and south. Our government cooperates with border construction of bridges, highways, and waterways in both Canada and Mexico.

Today, vacationing in Mexico or Canada is spoken of in many American families. Distance by air or rail seems much shorter than it did a few years ago. This friendly exchange of travel helps to promote good fellowship among the people.

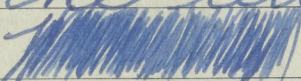

THE MAGIC MOTION OF THE CAPITAL LETTERS

 O o This direct oval is very helpful in learning to make the letters, O, A, C, D, E, G, S, and L.

 Push-pull lines give strength, and help with P, B, and R.

Have you seen a magician lately? When writing the capital letters there are certain motions that give us magic help. What motion will help you with capital Q? Make up your own magic motion page for the other small letters of the alphabet.

Drills will help you when you have some reason for using them. You may use them to relax, for rhythmical counting, to check your posture, to improve your touch, to get the general swing of the letter, and to gain complete confidence in your ability to use the pen. Remember, that movement is necessary for all exercise practice.

PENICILLIN

Penicillin, the wonder drug, has saved the lives of many persons stricken with blood poisoning and many other diseases.

It is a yellow-orange powder and is produced by the same type of mold which grows on bread or cheese.

Scarcely a year passes that some discovery in the drug profession is not uncovered. With penicillin, many claims were made for its powers. After years of testing, it has now found its way into the cataloged resources of the hospitals and medical profession.

Make a list of all the loop letters and drill on them.

This is a good page to review all of the upper loop letters as well as the lower loop letters. Practice these individual letters on separate paper, and then try the word in which they appear. Remember the loop letters are open and free flowing.

TALKING INTO THE MICROPHONE

1. Adjust the instrument to suit your height.
2. Stand back a little distance from the mouthpiece.
3. Speak directly into the, "mike."
4. Talk clearly and naturally.
5. Your manuscript should be neat and well written.

It is important that we all learn to talk correctly and naturally into a microphone. Many eighth grade children go on the air during a school year. Practice all of the figures from 1 to 25. Write them in neat columns as you would for addition. Also write them horizontally.

Practice each sentence on other paper and on different days until you have mastered them. Additional suggestions you think important may be used for supplementary practice.

THE INVENTOR'S DREAM

Can you imagine your Dad's car, your Mom's sewing machine, or even your own bike running by atomic power?

You may be the inventor behind one of these. During the atomic age many new and different things may be discovered.

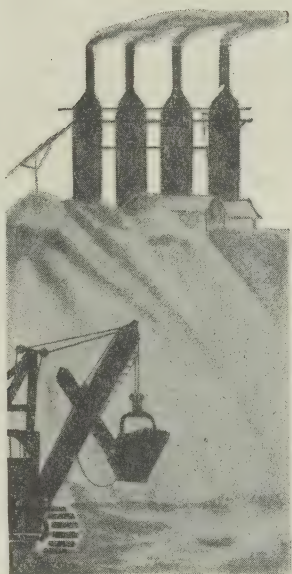

Some of our finest inventions have been discovered by accident. This is the exception rather than the rule, as most of our inventions have taken years of study and experimentation. Good handwriting is not learned incidentally, but needs careful study and practice.

So it is with handwriting. We do not write on a thirty degree slant just by coincidence. It has been found through daily use, study, and research, that this style of writing is the most easily acquired and read.

All the things we use have first been in the form of raw materials. If we look about our classroom, we can name many kinds of raw materials used in our furnishings.

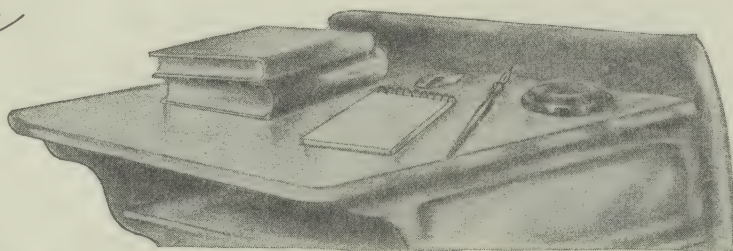

Our classroom furnishings were not always finished products as we see them. The iron in your desk was at one time iron ore. The wood in the chairs was at one time a tree. Name the other kinds of raw materials that are used in your school room.

By omitting the picture and using more words to the line you will have one or two additional lines to write upon. Use them for a sentence about the picture above, or one you have brought from home.

It is hard to realize that our writing paper may have

Neat desks and neatly written papers go hand in hand. As you practice this, see if the writing on your paper is neatly arranged and if your desk is in good order.

List all the hump letters and tell why they are called hump letters. By omitting the picture, you will have room for an extra line of writing. The arrangement of this writing needs special attention.

TOOLS

Tools are necessary to convert raw materials into useful products.

Good tools and schools are an asset in learning any skill, trade, or art.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

What language shall I take when
I go into high school next year?

French	Spanish	English	Latin
nous	nuestro	our	noster
fille	muchacha	girl	puella
et	y	and	et
garçon	muchacho	boy	puer
amis	amigos	friends	amicus

One of the problems you will face as you prepare to enter high school is what foreign language to take. Will you study Latin, which is the foundation for several modern languages, or will it be French, Spanish, German, or some other foreign language?

C What language shall I take when

It may be that you have a natural aptitude for French or Spanish and prefer to study one or the other. Discuss this with your teacher after you have practiced the words shown above. It will be fun to learn to pronounce these foreign words.

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER

Can you write the first verse of the Star-Spangled Banner and punctuate it correctly as it was written by Francis Scott Key?
Let's try it to see how many can write it from memory.

1. Upon arrival at the home, greet your hostess first.
2. Introduce your friends properly.
3. Make your conversation pleasant.
4. When invited to dinner — go.
5. When you start to leave — leave.

HAVE YOU A HOBBY?

Having a hobby or being a collector is a very popular fad these days with both young and old.

Boys and girls may have their interests in collecting stamps, dolls or insects.

What is your hobby? Is it collecting stamps, making model airplanes, collecting pens and pencils or beautiful buttons? If you do not have a hobby, this would be a good time to start one. You may even decide to make good handwriting your hobby.

Your dictionary does things for you, just as your schoolmates do. Let's look up the word mellow.

1. How do you spell mellow?
2. What does mellow mean?
3. Can you divide it into syllables?
4. How do you say it correctly?
5. What language is it derived from?

Study the parts of the letter and write the message on this page. Bring some unruled paper and envelopes from home and write a letter of application for a position to someone you know. What other greetings and closings are suitable for business letters?

To be successful in any line of work, you will want to set up standards for personality and personal appearance that you wish to maintain.

These are very important steps toward your success.

How well can you write this page? It should be one of your best.

After writing this page compare it with some of your work in the front of the book and with the specimen on the inside back cover page. If it is as well written, you may consider yourself a good writer.

YOUR FUTURE AND YOU

"It is too early to think of my future," you may say; but who doesn't make plans for a journey and do some planning long before the trip actually begins.

This writing was done by an eighth grade girl near the middle of the term. Can you write as well as she did?
